It is important to note that the results of this study are based on a cross-sectional design. While the data suggest a positive relationship between the variables, a causal relationship cannot be definitively established without a longitudinal study. Future research should aim to track these relationships over time to better understand the underlying mechanisms and the long-term effects of the variables studied.

1. The first group of three respondents (1, 2, 3) was interviewed in 1992, the second group of three (4, 5, 6) in 1993, and the third group of three (7, 8, 9) in 1994. The first group was interviewed in the same order as the second and third groups. The first group was interviewed in the same order as the second and third groups. The first group was interviewed in the same order as the second and third groups.
